

North Montco Volunteer Center

Connecting People. Resources. Organizations.

The North Montco Volunteer Center creates connections between volunteer opportunities and individuals, groups and families to help them serve their community in Northern Montgomery County. The North Montco Volunteer Center supports non-profit organizations to use volunteers effectively, develops volunteer leaders, and advocates for volunteerism resulting in an increased number of volunteers mobilized in the community. We help you help others. So, give an hour, give a Saturday, give your best.

To find a volunteer opportunity that fits you, visit our website, volunteermontco.org or call the Volunteer Center at (215) 855-3319. There are many ways to get connected. We can match you with an organization near your home, a cause that is important to you, or an opportunity that matches your skills and interests.

By volunteering you will be helping people who need you and best of all, you will be helping yourself. Volunteering can change your perspective as you use your talents to better yourself and your community. Most volunteers claim that volunteering benefits them as much as it does the people being served. Benefits of volunteering can include personal growth, helping others reach their full potential, building self-esteem, making new friends, and understanding new cultures.

Volunteering as a team with co-workers is an excellent way to get to know one another, build team morale and improve the community where you work. Contact the Volunteer Center for more information on group opportunities.

"It always seems to me that you always receive much more than you give as a volunteer – helping others, making new friends, growing yourself into different areas outside of just work & home. It is a Win – Win for everybody!"
 - Volunteer, Day of Caring 2010
